Managers Meeting to Settle Claims for Extra Performances Through Umpire.

The Producing Managers Protectiv Association, at a meeting held vesterday at the Hotel Astor, decided to agree to arbitrate their differences with actors over contracts, though not precisely in the way in which such arbitration was suggested by the Actors Equity Association two weeks ago. The actors organisation then proposed to the managers that a formal board should be appointed within thirty days, who should mediate on the question whether players should receive extra pay for performing on receive extra pay for performing on Sundays and holiday matinees.

The managers, in the proposition which they directed their secretary, L. Lawrence Weber, to send in reply to the actors' proposal stated that they would abide by the old standard contract, under which such extra performances received no added compensation, but that in case of objections by either side each case was to be arbitrated individually. The actor and manager in the disputs, the managers manager in the dispute, the managers stipulate, are each to appoint his own arbitrator, with an umpire appointed in turn by these two.

The actors' main purpose has been to make the eight-performance week the standard, with overtime pay for every-thing above that. When the controversy first arose the managers were under the impression that the Actors Equity Asso-ciation threatened, unless they obtained their demands, to seek a "closed shop" in the theatres.
